강의목표: This course identifies characteristic features of Korea's commercial relations with its major trading partners as they are influenced by the ever changing global trading environment.

Prerequisite: Introduction to International Trade.

Textbook: None

Attendance: Required. Four late attendances constitute an absence.

강의진행방법: This course is taught in English. The final grade will be based on the student's scores from the final exam, quizzes, other assignments (if any), attendance and participation. In-class quizzes and other assignments (if any) that are given will be collected for grading and feedback. Late homework (if any) of other assignments are not accepted. The (in-class) final exam is cumulative with more weight given to later topics than earlier ones. The final exam cannot be given ahead of schedule. It should be taken as scheduled and not earlier or later unless there are very compelling reasons. The final exam may consist of multiple-choice and essay questions based on materials from class lectures, other assignments (if any), quizzes, and handouts. If a student has a valid reason (as determined by the instructor) for missing an in-class quiz, a make-up quiz may be given. A make-up quiz may be different from the one missed. There is no make up for a missed assignment or in-class quiz after the results have been made available or known to the class.
